The Bank for International Settlements (BIS) is the oldest and largest international financial institution. It was established in 1930 to serve as a bank for central banks and to promote international monetary co-operation. The Bank's main activities include:

- Providing a safe place for central banks to hold their foreign reserves.
- Acting as a clearing house for international payments.
- Conducting research on international monetary and financial issues.
- Issuing the Bank for International Settlements (BIS) Bulletin, a quarterly journal of international monetary and financial statistics and analysis.

The Bank's headquarters are located in Basel, Switzerland. It has a long and distinguished history and continues to play a vital role in the international financial system.
